Great Speeches Video Series (Volume 1 to 26)

For over 25 years, The Great Speeches Video Series, which incorporates video footage of famous public addresses, has proved an invaluable instructional tool for Speech Communicators. Each volume contains at least five speeches, in their entirety, by some of the greatest speakers of the 20th and 21st centuries. Each speech is prefaced by a biographical narration providing historical context, significance and the rhetorical devices found in each speech.

You can watch and listen to how Franklin D. Roosevelt declare war, Churchill attack Hitler, Harry Truman announce the bombing of Japan, Lou Gehrig bid farewell to baseball, Martin Luther King, Jr. relay his dream, Nixon resign the presidency, Reagan plead to tear down the Berlin Wall, and Barack Obama ignite a 2004 convention in a speech that would change the course of the country. In their entirety—at your fingertips—in a clear full screen (widescreen where available) image, these speeches breathe life and relevancy into our history and clearly demonstrate the power of speech!

Great Speeches: Today's Women Video Series (Volume 1 to 7)

As a companion to our Great Speeches Series, the Today's Women Series offers important, but hard, if not impossible, to find speeches by contemporary and historically influential women, including Hillary Clinton, Elizabeth Edwards, Barbara Jordan, Lilly Ledbetter, Michelle Obama, Condoleezza Rice, Margaret Thatcher, Sara Weddington. This collection presents noteworthy speeches that command attention not only for gender studies, but also for any serious study of historic public addresses.
